DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Specifically, the italicized portions of the phrase "an output of an RF power supply is gradually or continuously increased to a value which is at the time of forming a film" are unclear.

The adverbs "gradually" and "continuously" do not clearly define the claimed increase of output power, even in view of the few examples disclosed in the specification. Power output of an RF supply is claimed as being "increased to a value", but the type of "output increase" included in the intended scope of coverage is unclear since "gradually or continuously" can readily be taken to mean "not instantaneously" which is an inherent property of any power supply output.

The phrase "at the time of forming a film" could apply to the claimed act of increasing to a value, which would then require the increase of RF output power to occur during forming a film. However, the phrase could also be taken to mean that the value to which the supply is increased is "a value occurring at a time of forming a film".

For purposes of examination, the phrase "at the time of forming a film" is taken as being applicable to 1) an increase of power itself during film formation, 2) an actual value of RF power during film formation, or 3) both 1 and 2.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Jian-ming et al. (1988 IEEE article).

Jian-ming et al. teach a PECVD (plasma CVD) method characterized in that an output of an RF power supply is continuously increased to a value which is at the time of forming a film [see Conclusion's item 1 indicating that RF power is advantageously increased "during the deposition process"].

Alternative to the Conclusion's item 1, on page 298, Sample B was subjected to a film forming process while turning the plasma on and off. Inherently, then, the RF power is "continuously" and repeatedly increased to a value of power that exists during the deposition of a film, for Sample B.
